OPEN CALL FOR LECTURERS
DEPARTMENT OF EARTH SCIENCES

Applications are invited for multiple possible Lecturer positions beginning Fall Quarter 2015. Applicants must have demonstrated experience or show strong promise in teaching. Applicants with expertise in field and laboratory petrology, natural hazards and disasters, and GIS are especially encouraged to apply. Candidates must have a M.S. degree or higher in Geological Sciences or a related field.

The courses are as follows:

Fall 2015: Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology (lecture, 3 hours/week; lab, 6 hours/week; 4 field trips)

Fall 2015: Introduction to Geographical Information Science (Lecture, 3 hours; laboratory, 3 hours)

Winter 2016: Natural Hazards and Disasters (Lecture, 3 hours; discussion, 1 hour)

Spring 2016: Natural Hazards and Disasters (on-line course) (Lecture, 3 hours; discussion, 1 hour)

To apply please submit a curriculum vitae, teaching evaluations, three letters of recommendation for teaching, transcripts and degree proof to AP RECRUIT: https://aprecruit.ucr.edu/apply/JPF00355

Once selected for a position, proof of other teaching position percentages within the same quarter at other public higher educational institutions and approval from the primary employer will be required.

This is an open call for Lecturers for the 2015-2016 Academic Year and the posting will remain open until the position has been confirmed. Evaluations of applications will begin August 5, 2015.

UCR is a world-class research university with an exceptionally diverse undergraduate student body. Its mission is explicitly linked to providing routes to educational success for underrepresented and first-generation college students. A commitment to this mission is a preferred qualification.
Advancement as a represented Non-Senate Faculty (NSF) Lecturer at the University of California is dependent upon re-appointment. For more information about advancement and reappointment as a member of Unit 18, please review the current Unit 18 Labor Contract.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity / Affirmative Action Employer with a strong institutional commitment to the achievement of excellence and diversity among its faculty and staff. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, age, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.